FEM: a federation of Product Groups

What is a Product Group?

Whereas FEM acts at horizontal level and embrace materials handling, lifting and storage equipment in its entirety, Product Groups gather manufacturers of the same product family and have a more specific scope.

Although fully incorporated into FEM, Product Groups have their own membership, structure, working bodies and priorities.

Product Groups' mission

- Deal with technical & economic matters specific to their equipment
- Involvement in FEM Task Forces to address specificities of their products
- Development of product standards and technical recommendations
- Production of market intelligence and statistics

Benefits of joining Product Groups

- become involved in the creation of your industry's technical standards
- Increase the status and visibility of your company/organisation
- Exchange with fellow manufacturers of your sector
- Gain privilege access to information on market trends
